Claims 23-25 are objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c), as being of improper dependent form for failing to further limit the subject matter of a previous claim. Applicant is required to cancel the claim(s), or amend the claim(s) to place the claim(s) in proper dependent form, or rewrite the claim(s) in independent form. The claims are supposed to be method claims however, each of claims 23-25 recite no further method steps.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 19-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Smith.

Smith shows a method of removing a staple utilizing a tool having jaws with a first lift surface (Figure 5), a first bearing surface (Figure 5), a converging first medial surface (Figure 3), and a first lateral surface (Figure 3). The method steps utilized by Smith for removing a staple are identical to method steps recited in the claims.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 23 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith in view of Reynolds.

Reynolds shows a plier tool having removable jaws wherein a pocket extends from an edge of the jaw for receiving the plier handle member.

To provide removable jaws for Smith wherein a pocket extends from an edge of the jaw for receiving the plier handle member would have been obvious for one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made in view of the disclosure of Reynolds. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to do this in order to facilitate the replacement of worn jaw members.

Claim 24 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith in view of Wrigley et al ('943).

Wrigley et al ('943) teaches that the handles of a plier tool may be made from stamped steel.

To make the handles of Smith from stamped steel would have been obvious for one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made in view of the disclosure of Wrigley et al. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to do this in order to provide a tool that is economically manufactured and has enhanced strength.

Claim 25 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith in view of Wrigley et al ('458).

Wrigley et al ('458) teaches that the jaws of a plier tool may be made from powdered metal.

To make the Smith jaws from powdered metal would have been obvious for one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made in view of the disclosure of Wrigley et al. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to do this in order to manufacture the jaws in a simple economical manner.

Claim 22 is withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 4/4/05.
